

Writing In Arabic

In this lesson we will have some examples of how the letters are joined together to form a word:

Example 1

Let's start with a simple word:

The word "Shams" (Which means "Sun") consists of the following letters:

The letter "Sheen", then "Meem" and finally "Seen".

We start with a "Sheen" in its initial form..

Then the "Meem" in the medial form..

Finally the "Seen" in the final form..

Remember to start from right to left.

After joining the letters together we have the word "Shams":

شمس

Now let's try another word (How about my name??)

Example 2

If you don't know my name till now, well.. it is FADI (I think it should have been FADY... you'll know why in the next lesson!!!!). Let's write it down:

It starts with an "F" that's equivalent to the letter "Fa" in Arabic .

The next letter is "A", that's "Alef" in Arabic .

Then a "D" which is "Dal" .

Finally an "I" or a "Y" which is "Ya" in Arabic (More on that in the next lesson).

The word would be formed as follows :

ف + د + ا + ي

After joining the letters together the word will be written as follows:

فاري

Note: Remember that the letters "Alef" and "Dal", both are from the six letters that can't be joined with the letters that comes after them, when they are in the middle or beginning of the word (The two rules that explain this case are in the previous lesson!!). Because of this, the letters "Dal" and "Ya" were written in a detached form (The letter "Dal" came just after the letter "Alef" and the letter "Ya" came just after the letter "Dal").

Now .. try reading the following two words which are English words written using Arabic script.

ديسك

تليفون

The first is "DISK" and the second was
"TELEPHONE"
